Counsel for the Accused:

Mr. Eugene O'Sullivan and Mr. Slobodan Zečević for Mr. Milan Milutinović
Mr. Toma Fila and Mr. Vladimir Petrović for Mr. Nikola Šainović

1. The Appeals Chamber of the International Tribunal for the Prosecution of Persons Responsible for Serious Violations of International Humanitarian Law Committed in the Territory of the former Yugoslavia since 1991 (“Appeals Chamber” and “Tribunal”, respectively) is seized of “Vladimir Lazarevic [sic] Motion for Temporary Provisional Release on the Grounds of Compassion with Confidential Annexes” filed confidentially by Counsel for Vladimir Lazarević (“Lazarević”) on 6 May 2009 (“Second Motion”). The Office of the Prosecutor (“Prosecution”) filed its response on 13 May 2009.¹ Lazarević did not file a reply.

I. BACKGROUND

2. On 26 February 2009, Trial Chamber III (“Trial Chamber”) convicted Lazarević for deportation and forcible transfer as crimes against humanity pursuant to Articles 5(d), 5(i) and 7(1) of the Tribunal’s Statute and sentenced him to 15 years of imprisonment.² While no notices of appeal have yet been filed, the Appeals Chamber understands that all parties, except for Milan Milutinović, intend to appeal the Trial Judgement.³

3. Throughout his trial, Lazarević made a series of requests for provisional release, some of which were granted on humanitarian and/or compassionate grounds.⁴ On 2 April 2009, the Appeals Chamber dismissed Lazarević’s motion for provisional release⁵ “without prejudice to any potential request for provisional release in relation to [his] medical conditions”.⁶

II. APPLICABLE LAW

4. Pursuant to Rule 65(I) of the Rules of Procedure and Evidence of the Tribunal (“Rules”), a convicted person may bring an application seeking provisional release for a fixed period. By virtue of Rule 107 of the Rules, the whole of Rule 65 applies mutatis mutandis to applications brought before the Appeals Chamber under this provision.⁷ Rule 65(I) of the Rules thus provides that the Appeals Chamber may grant provisional release if it is satisfied that (i) the convicted person, if released, will either appear at the hearing of the appeal or will surrender into detention at the conclusion of the fixed period, as the case may be; (ii) the convicted person, if released, will not pose a danger to any victim, witness or other person, and; (iii) special circumstances exist warranting such release. These requirements must be considered cumulatively.⁸ The Appeals Chamber recalls that “whether an applicant satisfies these requirements is to be determined on a balance of probabilities, and the fact that an individual has already been sentenced is a matter to be taken into account by the Appeals Chamber when balancing the probabilities.”⁹ Finally, the discretionary assessments of the requirements under Rule 65 are made on a case-by-case basis.¹⁰

III. DISCUSSION

A. Arguments of the parties

5. Lazarević seeks to be provisionally released from 25 May 2009 until 25 June 2009, “so that he may be able to receive medical treatment in a most adequate manner”.¹¹ [REDACTED]

6. Lazarević [REDACTED] states that the Military Hospital in Niš, Serbia (“Niš Hospital”) “possesses all necessary conditions regarding staff and technical requirements and qualities, for performance of very delicate and demanding surgery”.¹² In addition to the necessary surgeries and laboratory examinations that would be performed in the Niš Hospital, Lazarević submits that the requested release period would include adequate time for “the home care”.¹³

¹¹ Second Motion, paras 1, 10.

¹² Ibid., para. 4. See also, Annex C to the Second Motion.

¹³ Ibid., para. 4.

7. Lazarević reiterates that the guarantees issued by Government of the Republic of Serbia during the trial proceedings remain valid¹⁴ and submitted, as a supplement to his Second Motion, the confirmation to that extent from the Government of the Republic of Serbia.¹⁵ He furthermore reiterates his personal undertaking made in connection with his previous requests that he would “pose no risk flight, [...] [no] danger to any victim, witness to other person, within the terms of Rule 65 (I)”.¹⁶ Finally, he undertakes, if granted the provisional release, to remain within the territory of Niš.¹⁷

8. The Prosecution opposes the Second Motion claiming that Lazarević failed to show why the required surgeries and examinations cannot occur in The Netherlands.¹⁸ The Prosecution further argues that the psychological factors put forth by Lazarević do not amount to special circumstances warranting provisional release.¹⁹ [REDACTED] It further argues that an unsubstantiated preference to be treated at a hospital near his home could be common to all convicted persons. Yet, the Prosecution emphasizes that provisional release of a convicted person can only be granted as a matter of exception which Lazarević failed to establish.²⁰ Finally, the Prosecution insists that, if the Appeals Chamber were to grant the Second Motion, it should impose the same conditions as the Trial Chamber ordered in its Decision of 9 February 2009, as being “the minimum necessary to ensure [Lazarević’s] return to the [United Nations Detention Unit in The Hague (“UNDU”)].²¹

B. Analysis

1. Special circumstances

9. The Appeals Chamber recalls that the specificity of provisional release at the post-trial stage is reflected by Rule 65(I)(iii) of the Rules, which provides for an additional criterion, i.e. that “special circumstances exist warranting such release”.²² For reasons described in paragraph 2 above, the Appeals Chamber will consider that, for the purposes of this decision, the appellate proceedings in this case are pending before it. In such situations, the Appeals Chamber has concluded that special circumstances related to humane and compassionate considerations exist where there is an acute justification, such as the applicant’s medical need or a memorial service for a close family member.²³ The Appeals Chamber has also granted provisional release for a visit to a close family member in “extremely poor health and whose death is believed to be imminent”.²⁴ The Appeals Chamber has also emphasized that “the fact that some accused have been granted provisional release for comparable reasons pending their trial cannot be automatically applied by analogy to persons who have already been convicted by a Trial Chamber and who are seeking provisional release pending the appellate proceedings.”²⁵ Finally, because “the notion of acute justification [is] inextricably linked to the scope of special circumstances which could justify provisional release on compassionate grounds at the appellate stage”, justifications such as wanting to spend time with family have explicitly not been recognized as special circumstances under Rule 65(I)(iii) of the Rules.²⁶

10. The Appeals Chamber notes that Lazarević presented medical evidence showing that, among other health-related issues, three matters require urgent medical attention: [REDACTED]. The Appeals Chamber is satisfied that these medical conditions qualify for “acute justification” within the meaning explained above.²⁷

11. Regarding the Prosecution’s objection, the Appeals Chamber notes that, indeed, the medical evidence does not show that the required medical treatment cannot be performed in The Netherlands. While this is not a requirement explicitly provided for in Rule 65(I) of the Rules, the Appeals Chamber agrees with the Prosecution that it is a relevant factor in establishing whether “special circumstances” exist. Nonetheless, the Appeals Chamber emphasizes that the assessment of such circumstances must be made on a case-by-case basis and reflect the totality of relevant considerations. Lazarević’s situation is different from those described in the decisions cited by the Prosecution.²⁸ The Appeals Chamber finds that Lazarević’s past medical history²⁹ together with the

²⁷ See supra, para. 9.

²⁸ First, the Prosecution refers to Prosecutor v. Pavle Strugar, Case No. IT-01-42-A, Decision on “Defence Motion: Request for Providing Medical Aid in the Republic of Montenegro in Detention Conditions”, 8 December 2005, pp. 3-4, in which the Appeals Chamber dismissed Pavle Strugar’s request to be provisionally released on the grounds that, although his need for knee surgery was undisputed, he did not show why the required treatment could not be adduced in The Netherlands. The Prosecution omits to mention, however, that Pavle Strugar’s renewed request was granted some days later in light of his “overall medical situation” and rehabilitation needs (Prosecutor v. Pavle Strugar, Case No. IT-01-42-A, Decision on “Defence Motion: Request for Provisional Release for Providing Medical Aid in the Republic of Montenegro”, 16 December 2005, p. 3).

Second, the Prosecution refers to Prosecutor v. Slobodan Milošević, Case No. IT-02-54-T, Decision on Assigned Counsel Request for Provisional Release, 23 February 2006, para. 17, which only mentions the “preferred location” indicated by Slobodan Milošević but not any of the other arguments comparable to those advanced in the Second undisputed “prolonged uncomfortable recovery” expected after the said surgeries as well as the psychological factors highlighted in the UNDU Medical report³⁰ constitute, in these particular circumstances, sufficient grounds to conclude that the required treatment and subsequent therapy have greater chances to succeed if performed in the Niš Hospital as requested by Lazarević. Consequently, the Appeals Chamber finds that special circumstances exist warranting provisional release of Lazarević.

12. The Appeals Chamber is further satisfied that the release period of one month specified in the Second Motion is reasonable and justified considering the nature of the required medical treatment and expected recovery. Additionally, the Appeals Chamber finds that Lazarević’s absence from the UNDU during the said period will not disrupt the appellate proceedings as they are currently only about to commence.³¹

2. Other Rule 65(I) requirements

13. The risk of flight associated with granting the request for provisional release is higher at the present stage, after Lazarević was convicted by the Trial Chamber to 15 years of imprisonment, than it was when the trial proceedings were ongoing. However, the Appeals Chamber finds, in light of the discussion below, that the requirement under Rule 65(I)(i) of the Rules is satisfied.³²

14. The Appeals Chamber takes note of the guarantees reiterated by Serbia.³³ It also notes that the most recent provisional release of Lazarević was authorized by the Trial Chamber only on strictly controlled conditions, including 24-hour surveillance.³⁴ The Appeals Chamber finds that the conditions of provisional release at this stage should be at least as strict as those imposed by the Trial Chamber in its Decision of 9 February 2009. The Appeals Chamber understands that, although the condition of 24-hour surveillance is not mentioned in the documents submitted with the Motion. The Appeals Chamber further recalls that it did not have the chance to decide on the appeal against the said decision in the Slobodan Milošević case due to the termination of the proceedings against him following his death (see Prosecutor v. Slobodan Milošević, Case No. IT-02-54-AR65.1, Decision on Assigned Counsel Motion for Expedited Appeal Against the Trial Chamber’s “Decision on Assigned Counsel Request for Provisional Release”, 17 March 2006).

³⁰ In particular, the UNDU Medical Report states that the treatment and further medical examination in Serbia should be considered for the following “social and psychological reasons”: [REDACTED] (Annex B to the Second Motion).

³¹ See supra, para. 2.

³² Cf. Decision of 9 February 2009, para. 30.

³³ Annex to the Supplement.

³⁴ Decision of 9 February 2009, paras 26-27, with reference to Prosecutor v. Milan Milutinović et al., Case No. IT-05-87-T, The Republic of Serbia’s Submission Related to Trial Chamber’s Order of 18 March 2008, 20 March 2008 (“Serbia 2008 Submissions”).

Supplement, it will also apply to this case³⁵ together with the other conditions set forth below. The Appeals Chamber also notes that Lazarević has complied with the conditions imposed on him by the Decision of 9 February 2009.³⁶

15. In light of the above and considering Lazarević's circumstances, the Appeals Chamber is satisfied that, if released, he will surrender into detention at the conclusion of the fixed period for which he is provisionally released. Likewise, the Appeals Chamber is satisfied that Lazarević will not pose a danger to any victim, witness, or other person.

16. Finally, the Appeals Chamber notes that The Netherlands, in its capacity as host country, has no objections to Lazarević's provisional release as requested by the Second Motion.³⁷

IV. DISPOSITION
